The Lebanon High School yearbook of 2010 is the 78th edition of "The Warrior." The staff selected a particular design that helps tie the book together.

The cover is a full color lithograph. The full color endsheets were printed on white vibracolor endsheets.

The 184 page book is 8.5" by 11" and was printed by Herff Jones, Inc. in Logan, UT on #100 Premier Premium Paper and includes 42 pages printed in full color.

Fonts that were used are ~~VIKES REVOLT~~, AHJ Harold, Print Clearly, and Helvetica.

"The Warrior" was produced using Apple Macintosh eMac and iMac computers. Digital photographs were taken with 6.3 megapixel Canon Digital Rebels, 8.2 megapixel 20D and 30D digital SLR and 10.1 megapixel Canon 40D digital SLR cameras.

The Herff Jones yearbook representative was Terry Crabb. The plant customer service representatives were Robert Griffin and LaDawn Peavler.

Someone once said, "You can not really explain high school, it is just something that must be lived through." When we finally get here, many find out this is true. No matter what we do or who we try to impress, in the end we are all just a bunch of high school kids trying to adapt and understand high school. Whether it is with our friends or all alone, we have been at school working hard and sometimes not working at all. Through all the games, dances, and crazy nights, we have been anticipating the fateful day when we walk down Heath Stadium's grassy isle towards our diplomas and the future.

Once we go through all the experiences that entail high school, we develop our feelings about it. We are almost done with high school, and we will always have our memories, both good and bad. Whether it is a funny skit in Friday's pep assembly or making it all the way to playoffs, we go through the roller coaster of high school. From here forward, we will experience the future as former students of our old Lebanon High.

Lebanon High

Life is like a video game; you can control it. If you make mistakes fix them and learn from them. Just like a game, school life can be difficult or easy. School can be easy when you are passing all your classes or hard if you are taking college level classes. It becomes harder if you are failing classes. These types of ups and downs can never be understood unless you actually live through high school. You will never experience the pressure, never enjoy the stress and never feel the achievement of graduation until you go through high school yourself.

This year, the stress and pressure is really on because we are adjusting to a new principal, new rules and new schedules. Mr. Bo Yates was made the new principal. He came in and brought change. Our new schedule is now seven periods a day, fifty minutes a class and semesters instead of trimesters.

Life, however, is not all about school and what you put into it. Lebanon may seem like a small and dull town but people always end up finding things to do. Jobs, sports, and hanging out with friends keep Lebanon a fun town. People walk around town, go to 7-eleven to get a slurpee and just hang out at sport events. Sports is a big thing in this town. In football, it has been three years since we went to playoffs. This year, the varsity football team went to playoffs. There was a large number of people there to cheer us on to victory. These things we do outside of school help us cope with changes that stress us within school.

Despite the all the changes this year, the moments that people went through were memorable and sometimes indescribable. From striving for the best in education, to enduring the pressue of a new principal or just hanging around town with friends, high school is an amazing experience we will never forget.

"We got a mat from Coach Cox and practiced all third period for three days. Roosa got kicked a lot," said Richards.

School Spirit

Exuberant

Lebanon does not falter when it comes to school spirit. Whether it is getting all dressed up and putting on crazy outfits or just going to the game and supporting the team, we have always delivered on game day.

Top right: Mind powers, senior Nichole Martin looks off into the distance at a varsity football game. "I was meditating, hoping my psychiatric powers would reach the team and help them conquer," said Martin.

Bottom right: Body paint, junior Joseph Gillepsie shows off his school spirit by painting "LHS" on his stomach. "I just try to keep the school spirit up along with my shirt. Just not too long or otherwise I'll start to tan. And I try to keep the contrast between my skin and snow pretty even," said Gillepsie.

"School spirit is what you get when you give already spazzy high school kids something to actually be spazzy about," said sophomore Elaina Bauer. "Be afraid, be very afraid."

This year, Nancy Bauer introduced a new school spirit club called "The Tribe." They had to go to certain games and cheer on various Warrior teams. The Tribe is made up of 160 students and all of the students go out to their limits just to support their teams.

Left: Egg walk, senior Craig Trask smirks while running to the moving finish line. "I like the screaming contest," said Trask. "I love being able to show school spirit in front of the student body."

Above: Booyah, senior Kathleen McKeller yells with gusto. "The best part is just having fun and standing out when your class or team needs it most," said Mckeller.

One of the main reasons foreign exchange students choose to come here is for the new experience. Imagine going to a new country, far away from your friends and family, where the people typically do not speak your native language. It would be pretty hard to adapt, but the experience would be a great one.

"[I had to] get used to having to walk to my classes and the small city, because I come from a big city," said Beatriz Bevilacqua. São Paulo, the city she comes from, is "very, very big and chaotic, but it's good."

Some foreign exchange students are considering going to college here in the U.S. or moving here later in life. Others want to improve their English. All of them, though, had one thought in common: it would be fun.

What are some things that are different from your home country?

"Almost everything. Here, [we have] more freedom to think, to act, to speak," said sophomore Saithan Rayaphand. Rayaphand originates from Thailand.

"The school system. [At home,] we have a different shedule everyday," said junior Marisa Veith. "[And] the rules are a lot different." Veith hails from Germany.

"We don't celebrate Halloween the way you do here. Carving pumpkins is very disgusting," said senior Gerd Braten. Braten's is from Norway.

"The people are very nice here. In Germany, people are very rude to other people," said junior Rebecca Wollborn. Wollborn is from Germany.

Homecoming

Warrior Paradise

A Tropical "Warrior Paradise" was chosen as the theme for this year's Homecoming. It ended up stirring a frenzy of excitement among the student body. Crazy skits such as a "Twilight" parody, a victorious game against Silverton that was saved at the last moment by junior Cameron Thompson and Homecoming's first limo made for an exciting Homecoming experience this year.

"I thought Adam was going to win Homecoming King, He's the man!" responded senior Brendon Richards after being asked about being crowned Homecoming King. A record amount of students showed up to this year's Homecoming Dance.

"It was the most fun I've ever had at this establishment," exclaimed senior Sarah London. Homecoming means different things to different people, but it always unites our school in a way that no other school function does.

"I enjoy homecoming so much because it's the first major event that happens in the school year, and people really go all out for it," said sophomore Misa Smith.

Top: Unveiling, the crowd goes wild as senior KaryAnn Lane reveals the 2009 Homecoming theme.

Freshmen Academics

Youthful

As our future successors walked through the high school doors for the first time, it came as no surprise that most of them were excited. Some also came concerned and filled with fear.

After just a couple weeks of school, freshman Cheyenne Spier said, "Freshmen life is amazing, but also is very boring. We are at the bottom of every single list, and we have to learn to be ourselves." Despite the boredom, the freshmen led the year off by winning the spirit stick at our first welcome back pep assembly; they were ecstatic knowing that they had beat the upper classmen.

It is moments like these with those unforgettable friends that make you smile. It helps you through those hectic high school days that you wish you never had. Joining new clubs and getting more active in the school functions, like those crazy loud pep-assemblies and those unbelievable dances, are all part of becoming a new student. These are the challenges they face in a new school.

"It's been a life changing experience. I love it. My friends and I have had some intense times," said Amber Walters. "I love sitting with my friends at the pep assemblies, screaming our lungs out to win the spirit stick. We always get a kick out of the funny games and challenges they do."

Powder Puff & Tuff Puff

Homecoming tradition

There was a bit of controversy this year in having the freshmen and sophomore girls join in the fun. Powder Puff has always been reserved for juniors and seniors. The freshmen team played the sophomore team and won 14-0; and the junior and senior teams tied in the end, 7-7.

Right: In your face! The freshmen team received this beautiful cake as an award for winning the match against the sophomore team. They celebrated by smashing it in each other's faces.

Tuff Puff games start on Monday of homecoming week with the first game featuring the freshmen team versus the sophomore team. On Tuesday, the juniors take on the seniors. Then the winners from each game play each other for the championship. This year the championship game was between the juniors and sophomores. The sophomores came out with the victory.

Right: Run, Forrest, run! junior Kaylie Probert races down the field for a touchdown Wednesday night at the powder puff game.

"There were some controversial writings on shorts and knuckles which some girls got disqualified for. All in all, it was a good game and it was well worth our wait," said junior Edie Masters.

Sophomore Academics

Explore

New classes, new people, and new requirements are all part of life as a sophomore. After an exciting first year of high school, the sophomores are reaching out of their comfort zones by getting more into the high school world. This includes performing better academically and now involves the fact that the sophomores have to pass the OAKS test for reading, mathematics and science.

"I think that the OAKS testing is a great opportunity for students to improve themselves scholastically," said sophomore Dairian Yechout. OAKS testing is one change, but there are other changes as well.

They now have more graduation requirements and more responsibility, they also have yet another test score to worry about. No longer at the bottom of the food chain, sophomores have more freedom, but have to learn how to use it wisely.

Pep Assemblies

Rah! Rah! Rah!

The pep assemblies were great this year. "Being in ASB leadership, it's fun to see the end result and the looks on peoples faces," said senior KaryAnn Lane. They were loud, exciting and fun to be a part of. There were so many who were interested and ready to get involved: teachers, students, athletes, band members and many others.

As students cheered on their classmates and teachers during the games and contests, the sounds echoed out into the streets of Lebanon. This year, students played many games and contests, including the watermelon shoe race, hot dog eating contest and a fruit by the foot eating contest. Students get pumped when it comes to competitions.

Everything that students do at these pep assemblies makes a difference. It is as big as learning a life lesson or as small as spending time with friends, having fun and cheering on the classes.

This year's pep assemblies created memories that would not be soon forgotten. Whether it was watching water balloons cascade down from the press box or seeing students like Fletcher Bellenger run across the field with watermelons on his feet, the excitement has been cemented into the minds of students.

Above: Scream loud, seniors try to scream their loudest to win the Spirit Stick.

It's always a satisfying feeling when you get out of the pep assembly and the very next day you can barely speak from screaming.

Right: Speech, Brian Nielson pays attention to a guest speaker. The guest speaker was answering questions from the juniors and seniors about college.

“ My favorite thing is just being an upper classman, but not really having to worry much about all the college stuff. It's a fun year.

- Sydney Hornby ”

Juniors are now in their third year of high school and they only have one more year to go. They are growing up and becoming mature, young adults.

Part of becoming a mature, young adult is taking a variety of classes. Junior Monica Huang's favorite class is Advanced Health Occupations, "because the days you don't job shadow, you don't have to come to class!" says Huang. While some juniors are ready to skip class and go have fun, others are more serious like Tanner Pruett who has chosen to become, "A sports marketer or sports manager."

This is about the time juniors start to think about going to college and looking at possible career paths. Junior year can be stressful preparing for senior year, but it does not have all the stresses of the senior year.

Winter Formal

Exuberance

Enchanted Amazon was the theme and winter formal kicked off with full force on January 23, 2010. It was the first time Lebanon High School had Winter Formal at the Elks in some time. Everyone involved welcomed the close proximity.

"I felt like the kids really appreciated my efforts this year; it was an all around happy dance, there weren't any real problems," said Neva Clausen. Over five hundred students attended this year's all school formal.

"I loved just dancing around and having fun with my friends," said junior Vanessa Johnson. Formal always brings out the best in people. You get to see them in a way that is different from how you normally see them in a school environment. The fun and memories take a life of their own.

Formal is always a memorable night of glitz and glam. Flashing lights, blarring music and students dancing all sorts of ways made an excellent atmosphere for formal this year. The snowflakes added a unique winter feel in the forest. It seemed as if they had actually brought something to life and made it their own.

Senior Academics

Finish Strong

Years of hard work and homework are finally paying off. Seniors get the enjoyment and excitement of graduating, along with the stress of fulfilling graduation requirements.

Senior year is finally the end of it all. It is the year they get ready to walk down the aisle towards their future careers and lives. Many seniors are happy to be done with school, some even happier to be starting college. Other seniors will miss this school and are somewhat skeptical about heading out into the "real world."

Justin Santana says that, "To him, graduating means starting my life as an adult." To Chelsea Hodge, it means "Moving on to college to get a job and no more high school drama."

From their first day to the day they get their diplomas, it is exactly what they have worked towards: graduating. These seniors could very well be future surgeons, artists or maybe even president of the United States.

Jobs & Hobbies

Occupying free time

After a long school day or a short half day, students go out and do their own thing. Some go to work, some do sports, and some just forget their homework and go out and have fun with fellow peers.

In addition to the stresses of school, the stress of a job is added for some students. Many students leave school early in order to get to work on time, often working late and leaving minimal time for homework. Some get out of school, go to work, come home and do homework. These people are preparing themselves for the real world in ways that they don't even know.

Some students may not have a job but they do have hobbies. Hobbies are an amazing way to get away and forget about the stresses of reality even for just an hour or two.

Freshmen & Sophomore Electives

Freedom

Electives are especially important because they allow students to explore different interests and try unique classes like Welding. Electives give students more experiences and skills, which leads to better jobs and "future" success. Freshmen may not find these classes important, but electives are needed to explore different career paths and gain life experiences.

"You learn things you would've never expected in the Computer Applications class; that's why it's my favorite," said sophomore Ava Eggert.

Some sophomores may have decided the career path they want to follow. They have started taking more advanced electives that will give them better opportunities in life such as the Intermediate Ag 2 class.

In addition to agriculture, Digital Photography is an example of the wide variety of electives offered here. "I think it's awesome that we have a Digital Photography class here. Since photography is my career choice, the class helps better my photography skills and prepare me for college," said sophomore Jessica Frink. "I would like to attend Brooks Institute of Photography."

Self-Expression

Creativity

Lebanon High is very diverse when it comes to self-expression. It has many talented artists who express themselves in many different art forms. For such a small town, Lebanon is fortunate to have these talented students. Whether one draws, paints, sculpts clay, takes a photo or dresses in a crazy manner, these are all valid ways of expression. It doesn't matter how students express themselves, because no one can tell them how to do so.

With a lot of changes being made this year, many students have been affected. However, with the challenges came opportunities. More classes came into play, such as the new Graphic Design class taught by Janell Novick.

Art has always had to fight for a spot in education curriculum, especially in high schools. Many schools have had budget cuts resulting in art and band classes getting removed from the curriculum. Usually due to economical worries, art ends up being eliminated from the curriculum. Yet, this school has been lucky enough to keep it alive.

Senior Deanna Barnes exclaims what art means to her. "Art's a way of expression. It depends on my mood, whether its cute or sharp. It's a way of showing emotion. My art is very speratic, from being turtles and animals to music."

Top: Falling with Grace, "I like their fingers turning into branches," said senior Justine Meyer.

Bottom: Saturn, freshman Abigail Fry presents her view of the beach and Saturn on the horizon.

Bottom: Musician, senior Emily Wright photographs Alyson Stewart playing her guitar. "We combined photography and music to make art," said Wright.

Top: Infinity on high, "[Fall Out Boy] was the first concert I went to, so I drew the photo on the inside of the album cover," said sophomore Krystal Drexler.

Junior & Senior Electives

Last chance at expression

Not only are electives required, but some students see electives as an opportunity to branch out. Through electives, students expand and take risks. Electives give students a chance to free themselves from the constraints of typical classes, to let loose and let their true personalities shine. “[Electives are] a practical experience. [they are about] having a good time learning,” said junior Dylan Shultz.

There are many fun electives, those that get a person in shape and those that occupy the mind to the fullest such as Art, Photography, Fashion, etc.

Electives give juniors and seniors the opportunity to explore and develop new interests. “I love taking all sorts of crazy electives that you actually end up enjoying,” says senior Lauren Alley.

Special Education

Achieve

At Lebanon High School, the staff try their best to create a supportive learning environment for the special education students so they can try their hardest to succeed.

The best thing about special education is the supportive teachers, who's devotion makes everything possible. They are true everyday heroes.

This year at the high school, the staff are trying some new things, including a new literacy development program to help the students increase their reading skills.

Most of the special education teachers are using a method called S.P.A.R.E. It stands for Summarize, Predict, Ask questions, Relate and Evaluate. It is meant to improve reading skills like comprehension and making inferences.

This method and the skills they gain are going to stay with them throughout their lives. When problems arise, they will know how to overcome it and emerge victorious.

Sports, they motivate students, give them something to do while teaching valuable lessons that can not always be learned in the classroom. For some, sports is just a way to pass time. but for others it is a way to get stronger and to better themselves. There is something about sports that brings people together to work as a team.

There is a saying that states, "There is no 'I' in team," meaning that a team only functions well when everyone works together. Teams are extremely important and can be compared to families. Athletes and team members have to depend, lean on and help each other. When things get tough and hard to handle, the players are there for one another.

"If you're not a close team, it doesn't work out," said sophomore Sarah Kilby.

Lebanon's players are no exception. Even through all the hard times this season, they have stood tall and kept their heads held high. Failure was not an option for them and they pulled together to succeed this year.

Sports

There is no "I" in team

Cross Country

Dedication

When sports come to mind, people typically think of basketball, football and volleyball. However, while cross country may be a lesser known sport, it is one filled with gifted and dedicated athletes.

Cross country is a very individualized sport, but it is not just about individual wins. After finishing a race, the runners feel their best because they never gave up. They persevere to the end even if they are not in the lead because each finish adds more points to their team's total. Each finish may be the one that gives the team the win.

Cross country tests the perseverance and dedication of the competitors in ways that are unique to this activity. In other sports, individuals may be tempted to give up when the team is losing; cross country rewards the team for every individual performance. That is why cross country runners must push through exhaustion and never give up in the middle of a race.

This year's freshman volleyball team was overall victorious in winning eight of their twelve games. "I was really proud of our team. I think we did really good this year," exclaimed freshman Kylie Wilson.

Sports help develop teamwork skills that students and people can use for the rest of their lives, while keeping active and contributing to a positive environment. Also meet people that share the same passion for volleyball as do.

The freshman teams did great this year because they put so much effort and pride in their new school and teams all while building new friendships.

The JV volleyball team this year played a total of twelve games, and although they won some of them, what happened off the court was most memorable. This season held many surprises for many team members, but they pulled together despite the challenges and came out victorious in a number of their games.

The team did better this year than they have in the past and that gave the girls even more motivation to be successful. "I felt we did better than ever this season. I'm so thrilled of what we accomplished," said sophomore Nikole Johnson.

Varsity Volleyball

Spikes and dives make volleyball an exciting game. Some girls turn to volleyball for the warm, athletic atmosphere and some like the competition and the competitiveness that goes along with it. No matter the reason for joining, all the girls have team motivation in mind.

To fulfill the need for competitiveness, most turn to sports with a lot of motivation. The girls on varsity volleyball are definitely motivated. The team had success this season. With more wins than losses, it seems the girls stayed on the top of their game.

"I feel this season was one of the best and most successful," said senior Taylor Burrows. All the success this season made for exciting games and fun trips. The team can be proud of themselves for doing so great this season.

"Volleyball is my choice of sport because the adrenaline rush is outstanding and you get into the game so fast," said junior Hailie Vanhoosen. The value of "Team" really stood out among all of the girls this season.

Fresh football

Dominate

Hard work was a component to this year's success of being an undefeated team. The team consisted of 31 boys and one girl. Taylor Eilers was the only girl playing football for Lebanon.

"I keep my finger nails painted so the boys know that I am still a girl," said Eilers. "I love showing the boys I am a girl playing football and that I can still play at their level."

During the season some of the players were hurt, but they stuck together to come out with wins and a strong finish of a season worthwhile. The team played with their hearts and with everything they had in every game they played. Next year, the hopes are high for a successful year.

"This season was very exciting," said Paulino. "Being undefeated two years in a row makes you look forward to the next year."

The season was filled with hard work and determination and with all the accomplishments the team made, it paid off. With heads held high and hopes soaring for next year's season, the boys plan to go to the playoffs and try for the state title next year.

Dreams are possible

With sports, there comes responsibilities. The more involved someone gets with a sport, the more homework they have. "The hardest part about football was keeping up with the school work," said junior Tanner Pruett.

Hard work pays off, especially this year. After playing as a team for three years, the Warriors won a difficult game against Woodburn; this win took the team to the state playoffs where they dominated the Mud Bowl at Dallas. Against the next challenger, Glenco High School, the Warriors lost a heartbreaker by one point, ending the dreams of a state title this year. However, the Warrior football players are working hard and dreaming of the playoffs for next year! Way to go Warriors!

JV Girls Soccer

Goal

Non-stop motion is what the game of soccer consists of. Players must be ready to pounce in any given moment to retrieve the ball and lead the team to victory.

The girls on junior varsity do just that. Ever so swift with their contoured moves, the team knows the ins and outs of the game. Their season went exceptionally well this year. Although not victorious all the time, they still stayed positive.

"I enjoyed this season so much I felt we did extremely well," said junior Sara Parks. The girls all tried their hardest to stay positive even if the game or practices did not go so well. With that, they did especially well for the season.

With winning attitudes and positive outlooks, the team really came together this season. Whether they were winning or losing, they were still having fun. In the end, that is the one thing that truly matters.

Enjoying themselves while playing the sport they love is a great reward and amazing motivation. "I love soccer and I'm so glad that I found a sport that I truly enjoy playing," junior Taylor Masog exclaimed.

From scoring goals to running miles to practicing intricate footwork, the Lady Warriors became the masters of soccer. They were now the role models for the next generation. The Lady Warriors once looked up to their elders, but now they were the ones that were being watched.

Being dedicated was not just a bonus. It was an essential everyday occurrence in order to perform well. Not only that, but players were actually starting to gain each others trust, so an immense amount of pressure was put on them. Sometimes it interfered with their lives outside of soccer. Their commitment and performance was rewarded with how well they played on the field. The pressure was rising and the intensity increased. The Lady Warriors knew one thing, they made it.

Although the victories were few, the experience gained was great. The individual improvement by each player over the course of the season will pay great dividends for next year's junior varsity and varsity teams. Working on proper fundamentals, along with hard work and dedication proved successful on the playing field.

“The season was a lot of fun, because we worked hard together and became like a family,” said junior Colin Pyle. “Regardless of the wins and loses, we stayed positive throughout the season and continued to push each other in practice to get better. I feel like next year will show how much we have improved.”

This year, the junior varsity team played well together and are going to prove their teamwork as they move up to the varsity team.

"The score may not have turned out well, but as long as we had fun, the score did not matter," said sophomore Matthew Livezey.

You can be sure that when soccer starts again, the team will be ready to dominate. "We were a little disappointed we did not make it to playoffs but we will make it next year," said senior Jacob Stevens.

As the underclassmen move up to varsity, the team shall have an excellent chance and confidence in their hopes of making it to state. As the new teammates bring new talents and skills to the team, it is looking up to be a great season.

Cheerleading

Rising to the Top

For the cheerleading team, this year was a series of ups and downs. One of the most notable achievements was when the competition team placed fourth at Emerald Classic cheer competition.

Although competing and cheering at games is fun, perhaps the most fun the team has is at performances. Some interesting things happen at practice. "My third time doing partner stunts, I accidentally kicked [Justin Santana] where it hurts," said freshman Kelsey Brown. "It was pretty funny, but he fell to the ground." It is moments like these that bring the cheerleaders closer. "We are like a little cheer family," said junior Kelsea Vierra.

While competing and learning new things, there were also some downtimes that helped the team grow. The cheerleading team had to deal with losing two valuable members right before state. As a result, changes to the routine were made. The cheerleaders adjusted and overcame the challenge. When it came time to perform, the team made their way on to the mat and gave it their all.

Dance

Wandering Souls

A dance routine may look easy, but there is no doubt that being a member of the dance team is a lot of hard work. It takes a lot of patience, dedication and talent. These things are incredibly important when trying to win the state championship.

"Wandering Souls" was the theme for the dance team's state competitions, which is held in March.

"State was very satisfying this year; we came a very long way. I am so proud of the team. We grew together like a family and I wouldn't change a thing!" said senior Amanda Prather.

Through their hard work, talent, and long hours of practice, the dance team was explosive and unpredictable, earning 4th place at state. The team worked together and did their best this year.

Freshmen Girls Basketball

Facing the odds, the freshmen girls basketball team started the season with a win in the basket. The team beat Sweet Home, tipping off the season with a glorious victory and ending with another win against Dallas.

"Playing basketball was not all fun and games. Workouts lasting for about two and a half hours everyday prepared the team for our onslaught of games," said freshman Leah Snook.

Practices consisted of working for about thirty minutes on fundamental skills such as dribbling, shooting and passing. The girls all worked on offense and defense strategies, getting better and better every day.

Above: Got it, freshman Brittany Port and Jessica Smith attempt to grab the basketball while the other team holds Port back.

Shooting for the top

The JV girls basketball team upheld the spirit of competition that had evolved in the past few years. With high scoring games, the girls were recognized for their well played maneuvers on the court.

The team not only played well together, but they were friends off the court as well. The spirit of friendship was beneficial to the team in the highly competitive atmosphere. The JV team worked extremely hard throughout the season. Many of the girls were relieved as well as sad when the season came to a close.

"I was a little bummed [when the season ended], but I am excited for next year," said junior Jaquelyn Napper.

Being in a sport for twelve weeks gives many of the girls bonds and friendships that last for a long time.

Varsity Girls Basketball

A girl dribbles down the court with the crowd on their feet, yelling with excitement. The ball is passed to another player, while trying to avoid the other players. She dribbles in and around and sends the ball on its way over the heads and straight into the net as the crowd yells with excitement.

This description describes a game which requires a lot from its players. Perserverance, effort, teamwork and dedication are key factors to the game; a game called basketball. They are also key factors to the team.

"Varsity was like one big family. We did a lot of things together and we really came together on the court. We went on trips and watched basketball games. All in all it was a great season and I would like to thank the seniors for making it memorable," said junior Veronica Steward.

Joining varsity comes with both joy and sorrow. For some, it is their last year playing basketball with friends, while others still have at least one more year of growth and bonding. The experience of ever win, loss, and practice is engraved in the minds of the players for many years to come.

JV Boys Basketball

Passion for the Game

Boy's junior varsity basketball is the training point of time where athletic, young boys are assisted in their journey to being full time varsity basketball stars. What they discovered this year was that the basketball team is not only a team, but also a family.

They were thrown together, forced to develop teamwork, dedication, intensity and passion. The beginning of these boys' basketball career begins here. The squad this year had the leadership and experience of two junior boys and the rest were sophomores. This team has worked hard and long through thick and thin with the coaching of ex-Warrior basketball player Casey Humphrey and teacher and also ex-Warrior basketball player Dave Winters.

The roots of the high school careers of these young freshmen began this basketball season with the help of coach Ryan King. They came into this season not knowing what would happen in the upcoming season.

They are now involved in the competitive world of high school boys basketball. Two or three years from now they will be varsity players. They worked hard and long endless hours perfecting their shots. They continue conditioning to get in shape and learn the fast pace of the Warrior offenses and defenses in order to hopefully play on the varsity team in coming years.

Perseverance

In the final year of coaching at Lebanon High School, Kraig Hoene attempted to make his boys the best they could be. The overall record did not show how hard these boys worked this season.

They faced tightly contested games against South Albany, West Albany and Dallas, It was this adversity that taught them how to be one as a team. Warrior basketball has always been and will always be a family.

Through the team captains Justin Marshall and LT Avants and the coaching assistance of Dave Albion and Eric Frazier this year was productive and one of the toughest years they have faced. The team persevered in every attempt to make themselves, their teammates and their school a reflection of who they were.

“ The best memory I have with the team is when we all stayed overnight at the school; we had a blast.

Wrestling

Wrestling is a sport of agility, flexibility and determination. In order to do moves such as pins, throws, takedowns and grappling holds, wrestlers must practice constantly.

"If you train harder and longer than your opponent, you will win.

Practice keeps you sharp and in shape," said junior Joshua Carle.

After months of preparation, it came down to two days of competition at the Mid-Willamette Conference district wrestling tournament. The team took nine students to state: sophomores, Daniel Aranda, Bryan Lacy and Garret Urrutia; juniors Tance Privratsky and Andrew Vandetta; and seniors Dalton Urrutia, Anthony Albright, Joshua Casterline and Craig Trask.

Casterline took the state title at 215 pounds, which helped guide the Warriors to third place in the 5A State Wrestling Championships. Another notable event was the Del Norte tournament in California.

"The most memorable thing for me would have to be the Del Norte tournament in California. Our JV [team] took fourth and Varsity got first out of 16 teams. When the tournament was over we all went out for pizza and had a good time," said sophomore Keeven Hall.

The team has many great memories to look back on and many stories to tell their friends and family about their high school years.

- junior McKenzie Antila ”

On your marks

Swimming can be a relaxing sport when you swim for fun, but for these swimmers, it is a way of life. Swimmers seem to practically live in the water, with the amount of time that they spend in the pool.

“Normally we have a stress value, which is the level of workout that we do so if our stress level is low, then practices are easy but if you are in the 100's you better watch out,” said senior Stephanie Hilpert. “During Christmas break, during the week, Monday through Friday, we practiced about five hours each day and on Saturdays we practice for two hours.”

They worked hard with long practices, early practices and serious training. Every lap, every turn, every competition, and every breath, they showed team spirit and really stuck together.

Although they swam well, both boys and girls were unable to make state.

Equestrian

Hold on Tight

Riding horses is not for everyone, but for a small group of students at Lebanon, it is a great way to spend time with friends while working on their riding skills. The Equestrian team, which is part of OHSET (Oregon High School Equestrian Team), is probably not one for the most well known clubs but it takes just as much hard work and commitment as many sports teams.

"We do a lot of events from team penning, daubing, break aways, poles, figure 8s, team flags, individual flags, barrels, halter, key hole and showmanship and they are a lot of fun but they also take a lot of work," said senior Tressa Turnbull. Most of the members have their own horses or ride at a barn, so whenever they are riding, it is less riding for the club and more working on individual skills. The team has won first in drill in all three meets. They are going to state and are very excited about it.

In September, hundreds of students roll into the school of Lebanon High. As they come, they stuff the lockers full of books, bags, shoes and binders. The locker of each student soon serves as storage for much of their supplies. However, throughout the year, the lockers also become a treasure chest of memories. Some of the students have stuffed schedules, pictures, mementos and reminders in their lockers. During passing periods, they get jam-packed with books and homework.

The students lock in their memories to keep them forever. It does not matter whether students go to an out-of-state college or travel to a distant land, these unforgettable memories last forever. Every picture that has been taken, every note that has been written and all those ticket stubs from plays and dances will be unlocked at locker cleaning day.

It is at this mecca, the locker, where secrets and relationships are born, a quick "hey" or hug are snuck in the hallway between classes and the social world is often established. Now, the locker acts as a marker, a memory of the past and a reminder of what is coming. Between the lines and among the lockers, students start seeing things in a whole new way. In student life, the locker plays a significant role.

Freshman

Right of Passage

Freshmen get their first taste of high school on freshman orientation day. From that point on, they set out on a high school journey. Walking past the gates, new territory faces them along with a new chapter in their lives as the Lebanon High freshmen. The first day of high school is always chaotic and nerve-wracking. One thing that they all have in common is that this is an unfamiliar place full of excitement and energy.

Throughout the freshman orientation day, there are assemblies filled with words of wisdom. The FOP leaders train to become a welcoming committee on that day as well as a mentor throughout the year to help the freshman class become well-rounded students. The day ends up being a helpful alteration into uncharted waters on a brand new journey.

Many adjusted quickly. Some are still finding it challenging. Despite the differences in adjustment, the freshmen have been contributing. In sports events, elective classes, and in the core subjects, they seem to be ready to take responsibility and challenge the future.

Now, as the freshman of Lebanon High they have three more years to go, the world awaits them with open arms outside this book, away from the high school walls and down the street. When 2013 comes around, the butterflies will be in the stomachs of the future graduating seniors as they walk across the stage to get their diploma.

Sophomores

Progress

The thrill of becoming a sophomore is knowing that you survived your freshman year. Being a sophomore meant higher expectations you knew what it took to succeed because you weren't a newbie anymore. Halfway to graduating, sophomores were finally entrusted with the freedom to go off campus for lunch. This meant freedom from bland cafeteria food and the pursuit of something better.

Lunch wasn't the only arena in which the sophomores were striving for more. They came together to win the Spirit Stick, expanded their knowledge in challenging classes and pushed themselves to new physical limits in school sports, especially football. The sophomore football team was undefeated this year, showing their dedication to excellence.

Overall the sophomore class was fearless, and made their presence known within the school. With all of their preparation, the sophomores will return as strong juniors and school leaders.

“ Well did you know that soph is the latin word for wisdom. Therefore, sophomore is wisdom more. ”

Juniors

Almost done

There was only one more year until the class of 2011 would graduate and go on with their lives and on to big and new places. As some of the juniors started to think about their senior year and what they needed to do to graduate, the rest were just looking ahead to the fun times they would encounter.

Juniors gained more knowledge about school functions, such as game times, pep assemblies, dances, musical performances, sports and clubs as they went through the year. Then, as they finally became comfortable with the high school experience, they were close to leaving. Before that happened though, they carried on the tradition of imparting their knowledge to the underclassmen.

As the seniors left, the juniors were once again elevated to the top of the totem pole, as they were in their eighth grade year.

"Now we're friends with all the seniors and they're leaving. We are going into our senior year as the oldest and it seems like a very new, very exciting experience. But it's definitely going to be sad to see our senior classmates and teammates go," said junior Kenzie Antila.

Seniors

Time to get the heck out

All of us have gone to school for years, anticipating the day we would finish. As the end comes closer, no one can believe it; it is such a surreal thought that high school life will come to an abrupt end. As we move on into the "real" world we look back at all we have learned over the last thirteen years and feel astounded at the accomplishments and growth. Unforgettable memories have been made inside these walls some were good, some were terrible but each and every one of them has shaped us.

This year's struggles went from the schedule changing, to the deadline for the senior project being shortened by four months, all the systems disappearing and some teachers just suddenly not being here anymore. It may have taken some effort but in the end all of us adjusted.

When all of us look back on these last thirteen years of school, we realize that we might be one of the last classes to remember all those Nickelodeon shows: "Rugrats," "Kablam!," "Rocko's Modern Life," "Ahhh! Real Monsters," "Are You Afraid Of The Dark," "Clarissa Explains It All" and "All That." Then we think about how much fun light up shoes were in the 90's, how cool it was to have the first game boy and the wonderous joy of blowing bubbles in the summer. Our lives were soon invaded with Myspace, texting, video games and music before we even realized all the simplicity was going to disappear.

We look back on all our fondest childhood memories and realize just how much they meant to us and how much we miss them. Hopefully, ten years from now when we look back at high school, we will think of it the same way, as "the years we'll never get back but have defined who we all are."

As we tilt our heads to take a final look back at what all this schooling was really about, our eyes are shut no more. We see what are teachers have been talking about year after year. We feel prepared to move on but find some strings attached. We must cut loose and make our own paths now but without forgetting who we are were for the first eighteen years of our lives.

Staff

Put away that cell phone! No eating in class! No running! Where is your pass? These were the rules that staff had been cracking down on. Staff were not there to try and make student's lives miserable; instead, they were there to help students become responsible adults and be successful in the real world.

Sometimes, staff and teachers had bad days and needed motivation. The motivating factor for Mr. Benedict was, "Those students that get it! Also the students who come back and are all grown up."

The school staff was not there to dictate students lives; it was there to help educate and teach students responsibility. Staff members were not babysitters, instead they were there to enforce a positive learning environment.

Students should reward staff's hard work by showing them more respect. The staff was generous enough to dedicate their time to come and teach students every day. The staff gave students so many opportunities to improve not only their grades, but also their lives. Without the caring and dedicated staff members, this school would not have been as successful.

"I believe that we have a responsibility to teach more than just our content area, we should be helping our students to become productive citizens in our community," said math instructor Ryan King.

“Always strive for excellence.”

From band to hiking club, there are a variety of clubs and activities at Lebanon High School. Students spend their time learning and making new memories with others. These memories can be the best of the high school experience and are made up of people coming together and joining clubs. There are clubs that help improve the student's knowledge. There are also clubs like S.T.A.R.S., Skills USA, National Honor Society, Key Club, F.F.A. and Keystone that help the community. Students hone a variety of skills in these classes.

Most clubs give the students a chance to earn a scholarship. These scholarships help students towards college fees and some may even earn full ride scholarships. Others are not in it for the scholarships at all, but just for the joy of hanging with friends and being a part of something. Clubs give people something to look into, a chance to do something more exciting than a regular routine, a reward within itself.

The students interested in getting the most out of high school typically attend every activity or club they can think of. These make up the clubs section at Lebanon high: the students who spend most of their free time at school working on projects or planning fundraisers to keep things run easily and on a neat schedule.

Band

Intonation

Stepping into the band room people are greeted by an unassuming feeling. Students feel comfortable being themselves in the band room, as if they are among family. "I know most of my friends through band," said band veteran, Sheree Speaks "It's kind of like a second family."

Whether goofing around or playing some seriously good music, it seems like the band kids are always having fun. "During sectionals we put Sheree and Crystal in a band locker," shared senior, Terraanne Piper, "We tried to get Sheree in a tuba case, but it didn't work."

They once again welcomed a new teacher to their ring when Heidi Hooper stepped in for Danielle Miller. "Mrs. Hooper is a lot like Miss Miller in personality. She's very funny and we get a lot done in rehearsals," said senior Alyson Stewart Hooper. She has been teaching band for eight years, and has big hopes for the band. "I'd like to see music back in all the schools and I want band to be available in fifth grade," said Mrs. Hooper.

My favorite thing about band is playing for the community. I've been in band for five years now.

Below: Trumpeters, the trumpet section of Wind Ensemble plays the Hallelujah chorus with the choir and previous choir members. Every year, Kevin Wong invites choir members from the past to join the current members in singing the Hallelujah chorus with the choir.

Choir

Do-Re-Mi-Fa-So-La-Ti-Do

There are four different choir classes: chamber, concert, mixed and women's choir. Students stay after school, stay in during lunch and practice at home in order to learn their songs. Not only are they learning songs in English but also songs in foreign languages.

"I think the most interesting thing about being in choir is singing in a different language like Latin, German or Spanish, and sometimes French," said sophomore Emily Peters.

Many people may think that choir sounds like a lot of hard work. It is, but the rewards are worth it. After practicing for long hours, the choir is rewarded by getting to go on trips such as Disneyland, entering competitions and co-hosting the Renaissance Fair with the band.

Drama

Artistic Passion

Art in motion, dazzling costumes, and a world of possibilities is what drama is all about. The drama class has consistently put on exciting plays with their own fresh twist that is liberating and new. "It's a freeing feeling when you go to watch a live show and step away feeling something," said senior Makinzie Elliot. The drama students take chances. Instead of hiding in the shadows, they let it out on the stage. It takes a lot of guts and nerves to go on stage and perform for people you have never met.

"My time in the LHS theatre department has developed my talents and inspired me to pursue this field in college," said Kira Jacobsen. This year a total of four people won ribbons. Some of the winners were Lexi Busby, Emmi Busby, and Dane Steeves. The plays that delighted us were "The Christmas Bus" "Metafasia" and there latest play is "The Boy Friend." They also did one acts such as, "Anna and August" "Chicken bones for the Teenage soup" "playwriting 101," and "The Funeral Parlor."

JROTC

Striving to lead

JROTC (Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps) is a program designed to encourage students to become better citizens. The objectives of JROTC are to educate and train students in citizenship, promote community service, install responsibility, character, self-discipline and provide instruction in air and space fundamentals.

It is not just about marching around. The students learn U.S. history, military history, land navigation and first aid among other things. There are teams like the drill team (spinning guns and stepping), Drum corp. (band) and 100% working out. The JROTC program is built among contemporary concepts of education, with a special emphasis on a "hands-on" approach to learning.

"Everything is so much better than last year. Why? Because we have a new program and everything is just a little bit crazy," said junior Travis Richardson.

"To be a good writer, you have to be a good reader," said sophomore McKenzie Seifert.

With such a small group of writers meeting each Monday after school, they discuss topics that typically students don't write about. Ranging from poetry to the politics to many other topics, the list is endless.

Sophomore McKenzie Seifert said that Writers Club is "not a competitive club, but it is a place where any of us can be safe and write freely about anything. To me, this club means a lot because it reminds me to set time aside for myself," said Seifert.

Entering Writers club halfway through the year, freshman Joshua Lake likes to live by the motto, "Life is not always what it seems."

"Competitions are crowded, busy, quick pace and fun. With 50 teams that show up to these competitions, it is like a big Super Bowl party because you have mascots dancing and students dressed up all crazy like," smiled junior Daron Schmadeka.

While building a new robot each year, the Robotics team learns new material and skills as they put together their 120-pound robot by every January. As the team makes it to finals each year, the experience that they get in the end will contribute to their everyday lives.

Keeping Safe

Young students today are reaching maturity at younger ages. As a result, many are faced with making choices about sexual behavior that they are not equipped to make. The high school students involved in STARS share the disadvantage about having sex at such a young age.

STARS (Students Today Aren't Ready for Sex) help make a difference every year. Junior Theresa Stalley said, "If STARS didn't exist, 6th graders would be uneducated [...]. It is important for students to be the ones telling students instead of adults telling students."

By giving 5-10 hours of your time a month volunteering in the classroom, "we meet a lot of people and kids but it doesn't feel like volunteering and working with the kids," said junior Kenzie Antila. As a part of being a STARS volunteer, students are part of a team of individuals statewide who play a vital role in motivating, mobilizing and ensuring the success of the program.

Based upon the four pillars of scholarship, leadership, character and service, National Honor Society is a prestigious organization that is open to juniors and seniors who stand out in those areas. They are very committed to what they do.

One of their goals is to make the community a better place. They work towards this by volunteering both as a large group and individually. Many practice leadership by speaking at the meetings they hold throughout the year.

All members must pledge to follow the four pillars to become a part of an organization that will give them skills that they will use for the rest of their lives. They become members of a strong group of leaders with the skills to succeed and accomplish great tasks.

National Honor Society is one of the most noble, committed organizations at LHS.

Junior Kenzie Antila said, "there are several committees and each try to focus on their projects. One committee delivered flowers to the elderly and By-Laws committee which I'm a part of. We focus on rules for our chapter."

Striving for Excellence

FFA is dedicated to making a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education. FFA offers a chance for hands on activities provided by the Land Lab. It does not only include working with animals and farming but also includes a variety of skills and competitions.

Going forward, Mr. Wilson, one of the Agriculture program advisors says that, “We want to increase public awareness about FFA and the importance of agriculture and we want to be more successful with our FFA Career Development Events at the state level.” Clearly, the FFA program is fortunate to have Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Whitcomb at the helm. Their leadership and skills have brought this program to the top. Lebanon FFA was named the number one agricultural program of the year in the state of Oregon. Congratulations to the Lebanon FFA program.

Newspaper & Yearbook

Publish

The publications room might just be another classroom to most students, but to a handful of students, it is "home," a place of comfort and self expression. Publication students spend numerous hours in room 210 bringing new issues of the Warrior Spirit and the annual Yearbook into the hands of students. The staff takes pictures, designs pages, conducts interviews, works with local businesses and parents, and put in many hours after school in order to meet deadlines.

Bonds have been made behind the pub room walls that are some of the strongest most secure bonds that can be sustained throughout high school. "It has been a tough and frustrating year, but it is all worth it when we finally get the book out," said junior Yearbook Editor-in-Chief Edie Masters. This year, the pub room was faced with new challenges that had to be coped with. With a new adviser at the helm, having financial difficulties and losing staff members, the yearbook struggled to keep things going but they were able to pull things together and make this year successful.

B Behind school activities such as dances, pep assemblies and Mr. LHS, there are two student groups known as the Associate Student Body (A.S.B.) and Leadership. These students are dedicated to making the school a better place and spreading school spirit.

Throughout the school, evidence of the leadership's hard work can be seen with their posters supporting various events and activities decorating the hallways.

"One of the biggest events we do is homecoming. It takes a lot of planning and with new people, it is hard, but when they catch on and it is easier," said senior A.S.B. President Shay Bauer.

Keystone & Key Club

Making a difference

Key Club and Keystone are two organizations that are dedicated to helping others within the school and community. Both organizations are student run. Keystone is run out of the Boys and Girls Club with the help of the management and Key Club is run through the school.

From lending a helping hand to the people who do the blood drives to cleaning up parks to volunteering at the Boys and Girls Club, they are willing to take time to help.

The vice president Kati Robinson of Key Club explains how things work. "Let's see, well Key Club works like this. All of us officers will get together and figure out a plan that month for an activity. We choose what we do, where we do it, when and who we put in charge to get it done. It is more fun than people would expect expect."

DECA helps students that have an interest in marketing, management and entrepreneurship. Over 15,000 High School students worldwide benefit from being in programs like DECA so they can get into marketing already armed with knowledge and skills.

DECA is a good club to go into if students in the school need help building self-esteem, experience leadership and practice community service. People in DECA create friendships with like-minded people from all over the world. They met up at career and leadership conferences. The conferences help them with resumes and move them to the top of the list for college application list.

Skills USA is a great experience for learning how to take action in the real world.

– senior April McLaren ”

Skills USA is a nonprofit group around the nation filled with students in high school and college. The organization was made to help students better develop their technical skills, attitudes and knowledge for future careers.

Skills USA can be described in five words as, “An awesome student leadership opportunity,” said Neva Clausen.

As another school year ends, the seniors leave the school and head off into the working world. However, before they go, they can count on the skills that they learned in Skills USA. From leadership to self esteem, the students learn it all.

Skills USA is a great club to be in especially if you love a variety of competitions all in one club.

Spreading the Word

As Generation Life roles around every Thursday, freshmen students gather in Mr. Stolsig's room to catch up on the bible. With the other students of Lebanon High, they will meet in Mrs. Fandino's classroom. Many people think of Generation Life as just a Bible study, but it is so much more.

As a handful of students enter the doors on each Thursday, they discuss the word and the chapter that they will be reading from the Bible. Some things that they talk about is, "Do you believe in God? Would you give everything up for God? Do you have faith?" said freshman Denver Lammert. Denver joined Generation Life because his youth group started it and he goes to youth group as much as he can. Generation Life is open to anyone.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) is touching millions of lives one heart at a time. Since 1954, the FCA has been challenging coaches and athletes on the professional, college, high school, junior high and youth levels to use the powerful medium of athletes to impact the world of Christian Faith.

Sophomore Nolan Hopkins expresses his beliefs and feelings about FCA. "As every Thursday approaches, I know it is time for our FCA meeting. We talk about everyone's week and someone in the group will have a verse or saying to tell us and it is put into our daily lives. As we reconnect with the Lord, we stay true to ourselves. One biggest challenge that we have is size. If we were bigger, the messages that we hear every Thursday would pass onto one person and so on."

Advertisements are the reason we are able to produce a yearbook. Without advertisements, the yearbook would be almost impossible to produce. Thank you, businesses of Lebanon, for helping with the funding of this book.

Throughout the economic downturn, Lebanon's businesses have remained faithful to our high school. For such a small town, the businesses of Lebanon have come through to fully support The Warrior yearbook.

With a bright future, the community of Lebanon looks forward to a new medical college and subsequent business expansion. While many businesses around us have been closing down, Lebanon has thrived. There are many businesses that have endured the financial hardships. We are lucky to have such dedicated entrepreneurs in a struggling economy.

“ It's very important to support our kids. They are our future and we do whatever we can to support them. You can't just stop helping the community. You can't stop helping the kids. ”

There once was an old man I would see once a year,
 Now looking back I hold the memories so dear,
 He used to say with a smile on his face
 "Hi my little red neck girl"
 It would make me so mad and I would put him in his place,
 I grew older and listen to that song,
 I realized that he had said nothing wrong,
 Now when I hear that song I hold those memories so near,
 And I hope that Grandpa is watching down when his
 "Little red neck girl"
 Graduates this year.

Amanda,

There are so many things that I would like to say to you. I hope you know how proud of you we are. You're amazing. You don't try to be, that is just the way you are. We have watched you grow into a beautiful, young lady. You have so many good qualities that sometimes I can't believe that you are my daughter, and that God has blessed me with you. Anyone who truly knows you, knows that you have more heart than anyone, and there are times when I look up to you. When you and your brothers were little I would always try to tell you kids to have a good heart and be good to people. Sometimes when I listen to you talk about your day, or I see something kind that you do for somebody, I realize that you were always listening; you got it. You have never let me down; even when you did something wrong you learned from it and turned it into a positive experience. We love to watch you dance. It takes my breath away. When I'm driving in the car and hear a good song on the radio, I can see you dancing in my head, so beautiful and graceful. You're always dancing in there.

I know that wherever life takes you, you are going to do so much good and that the world is so lucky to have you. Someone once told you that it is better to be remembered for the nice things that you say and also the nice things that you do. Always remember that. I am proud to say you won't be remembered for being a mean person. It is good people like you that make life a wonderful thing. I hope someday all your dreams come true, and hope that you find someone who loves you as much as you love them. My baby, my little doll. We will always be here, and will always be watching you grow, and you will always be dancing in my head and in our hearts.

Good Luck. LOVE You!

I'll love you forever
I'll like you for always as long as I'm living
my baby you'll be.
Love Mom

Josh,

May in all you do reach out and touch God.
-Love Dad and Mom

Jake Braught

It is hard to believe that our baby boy is all grown up and graduating already. Since the day you were born, you have blessed our lives and made us proud of you. We know you will continue to make us proud as you go off to college and start the next phase of your life. You have grown into such a handsome, intelligent, witty, kind and caring person. You have always far exceeded the expectations we had of you and we are grateful to have you for our son (& brother). We wish you lots of luck and every happiness for the future. Congratulations, Jacob! We love you!

Dad, Mom and Janessa.

*Matthew,
Thanks for all the great memories. We will always be proud of you and can't wait to see what the future holds...*

"You can't hit a 3-pointer unless you shoot. You can't catch fish unless you put your line in the water. You can't reach your goals if you don't try." Never give up.

*Love you always,
Mom & Dad*

I love how unique my daughter is. She has her own style, attitude and personality. She is extremely strong and smart. She will do anything to make people laugh. She can be crazy, wild, outgoing and fun. She has set her sights on her goals in life and is going for it. There is no doubt in my mind she will succeed. I couldn't be more proud of my daughter Mariah Leann Jones.

I love you baby girl.
Love, Mom

It has been an honor to watch you grow to this point in your life. I love your honesty, your bravery, your strength and your fun personality. You have made me a very proud father. No matter what you chose to do in life it will be amazing.

Love, Daddy

Willis,
You are the joy of our life, the source of our dearest memories, the reason for tears of laughter and the inspiration for our fondest wishes.
We hope each day brings you closer to your dreams and that your dreams bring you all the happiness you could hope for.

We know the future that awaits you will be filled with more wonderful adventures and exciting experiences than you can even dream of. You deserve all this --and more.

You have more support than you can imagine.

A message from your sisters, Willy, You are the youngest, the only son, can you say it's good to be king? We love you.

Congratulations on all your achievements, now and to come

Love,
Your entire Family

you make us so proud...
continue to dance.
life awaits you
make the most of it!

love

mom, grammie & papa

To Chelsey,

You made it! Just remember that I will always love you no matter what. Know who you are and don't let anyone determine your future and happiness but you. I can't begin to express how much joy and love you have brought into my life and thanks for supporting me in return. You will always be my little girl.

Love,

Mom & Mike

Rachel,

We are so proud of the person you have become, and cannot wait to see what other amazing things you will accomplish as an adult.

We love you so very much.

Mom, Brian, and Sis

P.S. Don't touch the _____

Congratulations Shay!

*Chelsea,
Keep up the good work!
Love, Dad*

There are so many people who have helped with this year's book. It is impossible to remember everyone. Thank You to everyone who contributed.
